Born in Macedonia on August 26, 1910, Mary Teresa Bojaxhiu was fascinated by the lives of missionaries from a young age. At age 18, she left home to join the Sisters of Loreto in Ireland, and in 1929 moved to India to serve as a teacher with the Sisters of Loreto in Calcutta.

In 1950, Mother Teresa founded the Missionaries of Charity, a religious community caring for "the poorest of the poor". In 1952 she opened her first hospice to help people die with dignity. She also opened a hospice for those suffering from leprosy and a home for orphans. By the 1960s, word of Mother Teresa's work had spread. Her message—to radically love and serve all people—was welcomed and spread around the world.

In 1979 Mother Teresa received the Nobel Peace Prize for her work. She refused the ceremonial banquet and instead asked that the $192,000 be given to the poor in India. She died on September 5, 1993 and was mourned by both religious and non-religious communities alike.
